HE FEARED HE HAD LOST

When Wu Ting Fang, the famous Chinese Minister to Washington, irritable and somewhat forgetful from a severe cold, missed one day from the front of his cap the immense diamond he always wears there, he was dreadfully frightened. A friend pointed out that the statesman had inadvertently donned his turban wrong side before, and that the diamond was safe in the rear. Had Wu Ting Fang been wearing a Benson's Porous Plaster on his chest or back to cure his cold, he never would have doubted its location. He would have felt it doing its work,—warming and making flexible the torpid muscles, extracting the pain and soreness, promoting the free circulation of the blood, stimulating the skin and lungs to proper action, and so dissolving and banishing the malady. Thus we perceive, beloved friends, that while a pretty thing to look upon, was of no practical use. But Benson's Plasters are supremely useful. They relieve and cure gout, rheumatism, neuralgia, colds on the chest, lame back, etc., so quickly and completely as to make you wonder how it can be. Better now,—well to-morrow; that's the way they work. Get the genuine. All druggists, or we will prepay postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c. each.

THE BIG DIAMOND ON HIS HAT

Man Proposes

A Dialogue.

BY EDWIN PUGH.

"She is absolutely perfect," said young Stafford Orcot.

"She mostly always is," said Jim. "It's quite the commonest type of she."

"Mind you, I'm not one to rave," Stafford went on. "Some lovers do, I know, but I flatter myself I'm not that kind of man at all."

"Yes, you flatter yourself," muttered Jim.

"Eh? Oh, I only wish you knew her!"

"I know hundreds of her."

"She's not like other girls."

"Of course she isn't."

"In the first place, as I have told you, she is perfect."

"And in addition to that?"

"Oh, you wouldn't understand. Jim, if she refuses me, I shall die!"

"Otherwise I suppose you have determined to be immortal."

"Jim, advise me. You're a man of the world."

"That is why I shall do nothing of the kind."

"I wish you would. I assure you I'd be only too pleased to take your advice if"—

"If I advised you to do as you think best. And what would be the use of that? It would be like spurring a bolting horse."

"Look here!" said Stafford, with an air of inspiration. "I've a jolly good mind to speak to her point blank and be done with it. I can't go on like this. It's making an old man of me. And at the worst she can only condemn me to a lifetime of misery."

"And what is a lifetime of misery, after all?" asked Jim. "You can easily compress it into a few weeks. Look at me, for instance."

"You?" Stafford looked slightly incredulous.

"When I was a mere boy—ah, it must be some six months ago now," said Jim solemnly, "I, too, was in love. But she told me she would always be my friend, and she hoped that I should find some one more worthy of me." He shook his head mournfully. "Well," he continued, "to cut a long story short, she was a better friend to me when she said that than she ever expected to be. And as for the 'some one more worthy,' their name is legion, but none of 'em are worthy enough."

"I hate that kind of cheap talk, Jim," said Stafford impatiently.

"So do I," Jim replied. "But they all say it. It's their way of letting you down lightly."

Stafford looked at him reproachfully. Jim rose and clapped him on the shoulder.

"My dear old chap," he said, "the world isn't going to stop laughing because a girl has curly hair and a man takes himself seriously about it. If you marry this girl, and equally if you don't, you'll soon learn to laugh again yourself. You'll have to—we all have to, to keep our hearts from breaking. I am not one of those who would see love slaughtered to make an 'Ally Sloper's Half Holiday,' but all the same I am not going to encourage you in the belief that you are not more than slightly ridiculous. Here is a girl good and charming and all that, I've no doubt, and here are you, such as you are, pretty ordinary and right. You love the girl and want to marry her. Well, tell her so. Take my word for it, she is very ready to be told."

"Jim, old man," said Stafford, smiling wanly, "I feel that I can't talk to you any more about this. It's too sacred. And you're so unsympathetic. You mean well, but you don't understand. It isn't as if she were one of your frivolous society girls."

"They are quite as much yours as mine," protested Jim.

"She is an angel," said Stafford, with conviction.

"Not yet."

"I could die for her."

"Why waste a charming widow?"

"I know you think I'm being a bit extravagant," said Stafford, "but really and soberly I do believe there is something divine about that girl."

"It's her expression," said Jim gravely.

"How did you know that?" cried Stafford.

"It's either that or the way she sings."

"Yes," Stafford responded eagerly, "she does sing, you know, only privately, of course."

"Not much, but often," Jim suggested.

It was the last straw. Stafford picked up his hat.

"I believe you are turning into a profound cynic, Jim," he said, "and I'm sorry to see it."

"A cynic is never profound," retorted Jim. "All the same, I wish you the best of luck."

"She will never accept me."

"Even if she does I shan't despair," said Jim, grinning. "By the way, what is her name?"

"Her name?" stammered Stafford.

"For purposes of reference and identification, you know," said Jim. "she must have a name, however unworthy."

Stafford whispered in his ear and rushed from the room. Jim stood motionless before the fireplace.

"The same girl!" he said, with a sigh. "Poor old Stafford!" And he filled his pipe.

But she accepted Stafford.

"Of course she is six months older now," Jim reminded himself. "And a woman grows more inclined to accept something less than perfection as the months roll by. It makes a difference."

"And now you're the happiest man in the world?" he said when Stafford imparted the great news to him a day or two later.

"I suppose so," said Stafford, adding hastily, "Of course I am."

Jim appraised him with a keen glance.

"Her parents," Stafford proceeded rather inconsequently, "are all in favor of an early marriage."

"Lucky man!"

"And of course," said Stafford, "there is no doubt, as her father says, that the sooner we get it over the better."

"Sort of cold bath business," thought Jim.

"I say, old man," Stafford blurted out at last, "of course I'm awfully happy and all that, and she is quite the dearest little girl in the world, but has it ever struck you that marriage is a little rough on the man?"

Jim rose up in his wrath.

"Stafford," said he, pointing the finger of scorn at his friend, "she is absolutely perfect, remember. You said so yourself."

Stafford shuffled. "I said she was as perfect as a woman could be."

"'Absolutely perfect' were the words you used."

"That's not evidence. I swear it. I had myself perfectly well in hand. And I particularly said at the time I didn't want to be extravagant."

"And you said also that you would surely die if she refused you."

Stafford tried to laugh. "Never knew you read novelettes before, Jim."

"Moreover, you insisted on it that she was an angel."

"You have mixed me up with some other man."

"You were certainly not yourself at the time. I could almost wish now that you had been."

"Take your time. Say some more," Stafford drawled.

"I've nearly done," said Jim. "You finally accused me of being a cynic because I ventured to suggest she was more or less human."

"Were you so wise when you were in love?" Stafford asked.

"No," answered Jim, "but the woman was. She declined to come down from her pedestal."—Black and White.

The Proper Way to Introduce People.

In making an introduction the man is always taken to the lady to be presented, and the formula is, "Miss A., may I present Mr. B.?" Where two women or two men are presented the elder is addressed where the difference is marked. A girl presents her friends to her mother, but the mother says, "Allow me to present my daughter, Mrs. Blank." A woman should rise when another woman is presented to her unless she is much younger than herself. If a man is presented, she retains her seat and bows and smiles cordially. Men always shake hands when introduced to each other. Women do so when desiring to show especial friendliness.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Lake of Ink.

Men of science tell of the existence in Mexico of a "lake of ink." The body of water or ink or whatever it is is so covered with the ashes from the adjacent volcanoes as to appear a part of the surrounding ground, which is all of the same dull tint. At first the party of pioneers who discovered the lake inclined to the theory that it was but a mere hole, but the condition of the clothes of one of the party who fell into it quickly disproved this, for the dirt left an indelible stain. It was called ink forthwith, and, as it blended readily with alcohol, one of the draftsmen of the party took the occasion to supply himself with a good cheap quality of drawing ink.

Care In Drying Linen.

In these days of factory made linens it is especially essential that the goods should be carefully laundered. The fiber of linen is easily cracked when it is in a frozen state, and for this reason it is much wiser to dry it in the house during the cold weather. Old fashioned linen such as our great-grandmothers wove could be easily hung outdoors in winter and allowed to bleach in the frost as well as in the dew, but when the fiber has been weakened by the use of bleachers it is impossible that it should wear like the old time linens.

How Some Seeds Travel.

The most curious provision possessed by seeds for self dissemination is the hygroscopic awn. In the wild oat (Avena fatua), for example, there is attached to the glumelia (a small, leafy structure connected with the seed) a spiral awn covered with humorous fine hairs, and this awn has the power of expanding when moist and of contracting when dry.

Thus the attached seed is constantly on the move with the changes in the weather, the hairs clinging to any object met with until germination or destruction puts an end to its motion.

The seed of barley, too, is provided with a similar awn, which is furnished with minute teeth that point toward its apex. The seed when lying on the ground naturally expands with the moisture of the night and contracts with the dryness of the day; but, as the teeth prevent its moving toward the point of the awn, all motion must be in the direction of the base of the seed, which will thus travel many feet from the parent stalk.

The Trouble With the Pepper.

P. T. Barnum, being a pronounced joker, turned also his witty faculty to use. When he told the Adirondack landlord with great solemnity that he hesitated to find fault with anything about the hotel when so much was agreeable, he was urged by the landlord by all means to be frank and do so. "Well," said Barnum, "it is only one thing. I have discovered with regret that your pepper is half peas." The landlord declared it could not be, but on being assured that Barnum knew pepper as well as ginger he wrote a caustic letter to his grocers about sending him such stuff. They, knowing doubtless who the real complainant was, wrote back that if he would spell "pepper" he would find half of it composed of p's and that that which they sold had only the amount the orthography required.

Saving a Sparrow.

An authentic incident in the career of General Robert E. Lee is told as an evidence of his sweetness of disposition and natural kindliness. One day he was inspecting the batteries over the lines below the city of Richmond, and the soldiers had gathered in a group to welcome him. This action drew upon them the fire of the Union guns.

The general faced about and advised the men to go under shelter, but he did not do this himself. Walking on, although in apparent danger, he picked up and replaced an unfledged sparrow which had fallen from its nest near by.

Chinese Quacks.

Chinese quack doctors in the vicinity of foreign hospitals in the far interior hang out foreign flags inscribed, "Cure according to the foreign devil's plan." This is very flattering to the European medical profession, and the Chinese quacks, like quacks of other nationalities, are apparently allowed to sail under false colors with impunity.

It is not so, however, with the native butcher. For hanging out a foreign merchant's sign at Nankin a Chinese butcher has been arrested and beaten with 500 strokes "for the information of the public."

DANGER SIGNALS.

No engineer would be mad enough to run by the flag which signaled danger. What the danger was he might not understand, but he would take no chances. It is different with the average man or woman. They attempt constantly to run by the danger signals of Nature and that attempt costs thousands of lives every year. When the appetite becomes irregular or entirely gives out, when sleep is troubled and broken, when there is a loss of flesh, when there is a constant feeling of dullness and languor, Nature is hoisting the danger signal. The stomach and its allied organs are failing in their work and the body is losing the nutrition on which its strength depends.

Such a condition calls for the prompt use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, purifies and enriches the blood and builds up the body with sound, solid flesh.

"Your kindness to me I can never forget," writes Mrs. Josie E. Clark, of Rutherprise, Shelby Co., Mo. "I cannot express half my feelings of gratefulness to you. I had despaired of ever getting well. I had been in bad health for twelve years. Had aches all through me, numb hands, cold feet, and everything I ate distressed me; bowels constipated, was very nervous, depressed and despondent. In fact, I can't express half my bad feelings to you. When I first wrote to you I thought I could never be cured. I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and my health is now good. You have my honest recommendation to all sufferers. I think there is no medicine in the world as good as Dr. Pierce's."

If constipated use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They cure constipation, biliousness and sick headache. They do not produce the "pill habit."

The Index-Tribune

SONOMA, FEB. 8, 1902.

H. H. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR

THE INDEX – TRIBUNE'S chief 'spieler" of the Muses, having had to set aside the epitaph prepared for Herbert Slater, scribe and small pox patient of Santa Rosa, pens the following to fill up space. We beg to apologize for the non-appearance of the epitaph, but some people will persist in whistling their way through graveyards:

An optimist scribe
With curious pride,
Doth boast of a great old frolic;
Though confined in the pest
He continues to jest,
And laugh at the microbes diabolic.

Now, Slater, look here,
If your time had been near
Do you think your poems and revel
Would have stopped the Old Scratch
From pulling the latch—
Do you think you'd have bluffled the Devil?

I'm sorry to say
I don't think that way;
For in spite of plans you plotted,
Your libations kind
He'd have flung to the wind,
For the Old Boy had you spotted.

You could not have read
Of what Howison said
About newspaper men and their fate,
Or you'd never have wrote
In so gleeful a note
As there on your throne you sate.

Just think, Slater dear,
If your time had been near,
And your soul had gone forth to float
What fun it'd have been
To have taken a spin
On the Styx in old Charon's boat.

Of course you'd have landed
Where all lost souls go;
But that would have been but a revel.
Just think what a miss,
A big scoop, I wis,
An interview right with the Devil.

AMONG the publications which come to the editor's desk is The Criterion, a magazine devoted to literature, drama, music and art. It is highly entertaining and is to be specially commended on the excellence of its stories. Another commendable feature is its precision. It is a magazine for busy, particular people, being clever, concise and artistic.

THE gentle showers of the past few days means thousands of dollars in the pockets of the Sonoma Valley farmer and dairyman. The rain has come at a most opportune time and insures big crops in this part of the county.

New Gasoline Plant.

Captain J. Johnson, the progressive farmer of Buena Vista, has improved his private residence by the introduction of a ten-light gasoline plant which was set up this week by M. Savage of San Francisco. The improvement is the finest of the kind in the valley.

That Cough Hangs On

You have used all sorts of cough remedies but it does not yield; it is too deep seated. It may wear itself out in time, but it is more liable to produce la grippe, pneumonia or a serious throat affection. You need something that will give you strength and build up the body.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

will do this when everything else fails. There is no doubt about it. It nourishes, strengthens, builds up and makes the body strong and healthy, not only to throw off this hard cough, but to fortify the system against further attacks. If you are run down or emaciated you should certainly take this nourishing food medicine.

THE SURINAM DRAGON.

When Hungry, It Will Devour Any Animal Within Its Reach.

In "Stedman's Expedition to Surinam" the following wonderful account of the aboma or dragon is given: "This remarkable creature is called aboma in the colony of Surinam. Its length when full grown is often more than forty feet, its body being four feet and over in circumference. Its color is a greenish black on the back, a fine yellow on the sides and a dirty white on the belly, the back and sides being spotted with irregular black rings, with a pure white spot in the center of each. Its head is broad and flat, small in proportion to its body, with a large mouth and teeth set in double rows. It has two bright, prominent eyes, is covered all over with scales about the size of a shilling and has two sharp claws under the belly near the tail which it uses in seizing its prey.

"It is an amphibious animal—that is, it delights in low, marshy places, where it lies concealed under fallen timber, ready to seize its prey, which from its immense bulk it is not active enough to pursue. When hungry, it will devour any animal that comes within its reach and is indifferent of it be a sloth, a wild boar, a stag or a tiger. After twisting itself about the body of a buffalo, a stag or a tiger, by help of its claws it breaks every bone in the poor victim's body. I have been told of negroes being devoured by this snake and am not disposed to discredit the story. It bites from no other impulse but that of hunger and is not venomous."

OVER THE LINE.

Procrastination is the Thief of Health.

Nature is a very wise and careful mother but she is dumb. She speaks by signs. The man or woman who does not heed her signs or fails to understand them must pay the penalty. Some day there will be a step over the line beyond which Nature's warnings cease and her penalties begin. For instance there is a man who for years never knew he had a stomach, it performed its work so perfectly. Some day after eating he has a little sour or bitter rising in the throat. He does not heed it. Later he feels an uncomfortable fullness after eating, a distress in the region of the stomach and perhaps he is uncomfortable enough to wonder whether he ought not to "do something" for himself. But he does not get any farther than wondering. He becomes sleepless, loses flesh, and has other warnings of the development of disease but he still tries to work. Some day he collapses, drops down perhaps at his task and when he comes to himself in bed he is seriously ill. He is paying the penalty for his heedlessness of Nature's warnings. Whenever there are undue fullness after eating, sour or bitter eructations, belchings, and kindred symptoms it is the sign that disease is fastening on the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts. Disease unless checked is always progressive, and it is only a question of time in such cases, when the health and strength will be seriously undermined.

TAKE NO RISKS.

The wise man or woman will take no risks but will attend to the first symptoms of disease of the stomach. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which has cured thousands of people who were suffering from the most aggravated forms of disease of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition may be relied on quickly and permanently to cure such diseases in their earlier stages. Its action is prompt and efficient. Its effects are lasting. The whole body being fully nourished is built up with sound flesh, not with flabby fat.

"For about two years I suffered from a very obstinate case of dyspepsia," writes R. E. Secord, Esq., of 13 Eastern Ave., Toronto, Ontario. "I tried a great number of remedies without success, I finally lost faith in them all. I was so far gone that I could not bear any solid food on my stomach for a long time; felt melancholy and depressed. Could not sleep nor follow my occupation (tinsmith). Some four years ago a friend recommended your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' After a week's treatment I had derived so much benefit that I continued the medicine. I have taken three bottles and am convinced it has in my case accomplished a permanent cure. I can conscientiously recommend it to the thousands of dyspeptics throughout the land."

HOW STRENGTH IS RESTORED.

People as a rule have a somewhat vague idea of the manner in which life is sustained and supported. They know they must eat to live. But they do not consider that when the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are diseased, the object of eating, which is the nutrition of the body, cannot be perfectly attained. Only part of the food eaten is converted into nutrition, and the body is but partly nourished. Yet the body is required to do as much daily as if it were being fully nourished. The result is the wasting of the flesh, loss of weight which goes hand in hand with loss of strength, and general debility. When the diseased stomach is cured by "Golden Medical Discovery," the food is digested and assimilated and in the form of nourishment restores the strength and vigor of the body, the proof of this being written in the pounds and ounces of lost flesh which are rapidly regained. The only way in which physical strength can be made is by food, digested and assimilated. When the stomach and its allied organs are diseased the digestion is imperfect, the assimilation partial, consequently there is a daily loss of strength. When Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures the diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, the food eaten is properly digested and assimilated, the body is adequately nourished, and thus its strength is restored.

"I will express my thanks to you for the kindly advice you have given me in regard to my case," writes Miss Carrie J. Wharton, of Dunavant, Spottsylvania Co., Va. "When I wrote to you last spring I was in a terrible state of health. Had given up all hope of ever being better. I spit up my food all the time and it seemed sour as vinegar. I would have a bad sick headache every other week; in fact, my head never felt clear, and I was perfectly broken down under the strain of losing my food constantly. I was not able to have a physician attend me, but had read a great deal in your books of what your medicine had done for others, so I wrote you and got your advice. Bought two bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the first dose I took I felt better. When I had finished taking the two bottles the spitting up had entirely stopped and my head was much better. I do not say it has yet made an entire cure of me, as it required more than that for me, as I was so very bad, but I believe your medicines are just what you have said of them.

"I carefully read the books you sent me and shall always speak a good word for the 'Golden Medical Discovery' whenever I have a chance.

"You can publish this if you think it worth while. It might induce some one else to try your medicine who was suffering as I did. It was by the testimonials of others that I was induced to try it. I shall always rely upon your advice and feel safe to do as you tell me."

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures through the stomach diseases which seem remote from that organ but which have their origin in disease of the stomach and its allied organs.

If the dealer offers a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," remember that the sole motive of substitution is to enable him to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious preparations.

DARING BURGLARS.

Tubbs' Island Ranch Hand Relieved of His Money at the Point of a Pistol.

A bold and desperate robbery was committed on Tubbs' Island farm, ten miles south of this place, last Sunday night. About 9 o'clock in the evening two men, one tall and the other short, suddenly made their appearance in a small room attached to the big stable on the place, occupied by one of the employees who has charge of the horses, and covering him with their pistols hissed into his ear: "Keep quiet or we'll blow the top of your head off. Now shell out."

The hostler was taken completely by surprise and very discreetly dug up $40, all the money he had, and handed it over to them. This seemed to satisfy the men and again admonishing their victim to refrain from giving an alarm, they passed through the door and out of sight.

The burglars wore black masks made from the leggings of a pair of rubber boots, which gave a diabolical expression to their faces and really scared the hostler more than did the pistols that had been poked behind his ear. They also had their feet encased in barley sacks to muffle their footsteps. These articles of their craft together with two cruel looking gags rudely made out of strips cut from grain sacks and knotted in the center, were left behind by the burglars and are now in possession of Ben Garrett, the foreman of the ranch.

That the burglars had planned a desperate robbery on the lonely and isolated ranch was evident in their make-up. Monday was pay day and it was no doubt the intention of the masked thugs to gain access to foreman Garrett's sleeping apartment, cover him with their guns, seize and gag him and plunder the place at their will. Their plans were no doubt frustrated by the number of men on the ranch, whom they supposed would be absent of a Sunday evening. They then repaired to the stable and contented themselves with holding up the hostler.

The men in the bunk house heard the crooks prying around the windows but as the lonely island ranch was the last place in the world to look for a visit from burglars, the farm hands paid no heed to the unusual noise, thinking the foreman was making his rounds of the ranch houses.

The burglars were evidently familiar with the ranch but their identity is not even suspected.

Glen Ellen Township.

A delegation of enterprising citizens of Glen Ellen township waited upon the Board of Supervisors last Monday morning. The delegation was composed of J. Chauvet, Will Ashe and Dr. C. C. O'Donnell.

The object of their visit was to make a proposition to improve the roads in the upper part of the valley. Dr. O'Donnell has a well kept road running through his ranch near Glen Ellen. This he offered to deed to the county gratis if the Supervisors will build a bridge across Sonoma creek to connect that road with the present county road on the east side of the creek. Mr. Chauvet also offered to deed a right of way over his lands for the extension of the O'Donnell road without cost to the county and to furnish free water from his reservoir for road sprinkling. Will Ashe also offered water gratis for the same purpose.

Supervisor Blair Hart will inspect the roads around Glen Ellen, and particularly the road through the O'Donnell tract, and will report at the present session of the Supervisors, all of whom seemed to be impressed very favorably with the proposition of the delegation.

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.

"I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." EUGENE FORBES, Lebanon, Kan.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures catarrh—it soothes and strengthens the mucous membrane and builds up the whole system.

NEW BATHING RESORT.

John Lounibos' Latest Venture in this Valley—Will Utilize His Flowing Artesian Well at Agua Caliente.

John Lounibos of Agua Caliente, who has expended $15,000 on his Bellevue Hotel property in El Verano the past two years, is about to engage in another venture that will attract still more people to this valley.

This time it will be at Agua Caliente in the shape of a fine large bathing establishment.

For some time Mr. Lounibos has been boring for artesian water on his forty-acre tract at that place. Recently he secured a fine flow of water through a ten-inch pipe at a depth of 210 feet. This water gushes to the surface with sufficient force to flow over the top of a four-inch pipe at an elevation of fifteen feet above the ground. It cost $3,000 to develop this well, which is said to control one of the finest flows of artesian water in the valley.

Mr. Lounibos now intends to utilize this flowing well by erecting one of the best appointed bathing resorts north of San Francisco. The improvement will be made on the east side of Sonoma creek immediately below the iron bridge which spans that stream at Agua Caliente.

The site chosen is an ideal one, located as it is in one of the most picturesque spots in all the Sonoma Valley. In view of the fact that this valley is becoming justly famous as a summer resort and is visited annually by thousands of people in quest of rest and recreation there can be no doubt whatever but what this latest investment of Mr. Lounibos' will not only prove remunerative to him but will also do much toward attracting hither people in quest of health and rest in one of the most enchanting vales of California.

A FEMALE "GRAFTER."

Drops Unceremoniously Into Town.

Sonoma is dead easy. That is the reputation it is getting among vags, grafters and criminals of all descriptions. If any of the vagabond fraternity wishes to hie himself away from detectives and other sleuths of the law for a while, the "moon" town offers him a safe and delightful retreat. Its people are so guileless and easy-going that they never think of trouble or bad ones.

Following in the wake of "Leadville Jimmie" and others of his ilk, whom this place has lately sequestered, a female "grafter" dropped into town very unceremoniously on Tuesday morning last and under the guise of being an elocutionist tried to work a number of our people. She visited nearly every private house in town and might have succeeded had she not got tangled up in the meshes of a pack of lies of her own weaving and skipped the town to prevent being cornered. She succeeded, however, in beating her board bill.

When last seen the female was heading toward Vallejo. After her departure news reached here that she had been working Glen Ellen and that a warrant was out for her arrest in that town.

In the minds of some this person is suspected of being a man masquerading in female attire. As proof of this several ladies whom she tried to work for a good thing point to the fact that the grafter was masculine in appearance, was "padded to beat most anything," had hands like a man and actually walked just like the horrid creatures.

Something That Will Do You Good.

We know of no way in which we can be of more service to our readers than to tell them of something that will be of real good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its promt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. The testimony is given upon our own experience, and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup.—Camden (S. C.) PLAZA TREE-PLANTING CEREMONY.

An Enthusiastic and Well Attended Affair.

The tree-planting and ceremony on the Plaza last Saturday was an enthusiastic and well attended affair in spite of the inclemency of the weather. A large platform had been erected on the northwestern part of the Plaza, and it was the original plan to have the exercises of the day carried out here. As it was, only a portion of the program took place out of doors.

After a song by the school children and a few fitting remarks by Major E. A. Sherman, a sturdy little oak was set in the earth in memory of the late Gen. M. G. Vallejo. With the native soil of the General's own Plaza was mingled soil from some of the greatest historical spots in the world and dust from his own tomb in Mountain Cemetery. Then came "the gentle rain from heaven" as a further offering to the little tree, and so it was planted with the greatest care under the most favorable auspices of man and God.

This part of the program over, the crowd repaired to the pavilion where Major Sherman spoke in glowing tribute of Gen. Vallejo and the Vallejo family. His speech was followed by a song, "Ye Merry Birds," by Mrs. Lulu Vallejo Emparan. Mayor Fred. T. Duhring spoke in behalf of the Woman's Club and pictured in glowing terms beautiful Sonoma under the new regime.

The day's exercises concluded with "America," in which all participated.

"LEADVILLE JIMMY."

The Notorious Crook Was in Jail Here Shortly Before His Arrest in Tracy.

John Courtney, alias "Leadville Jimmy," accused of being one of the assassins of policeman Robinson of San Francisco, recently spent one night in jail in this place. The desperate crook made his appearance in this town a week ago last Sunday. He arrived here on foot and in his perambulations about town dropped into Wm. Kerner's saloon and was ejected for annoying a patron of the place. After being put out he threatened to break every window in the establishment. City Marshal Albertson overhead the fellow's threats and as he was about to make them good he placed him under arrest and locked him up in jail over night. The next morning, not knowing the desperate character of his prisoner, he turned him loose.

"Leadville Jimmy" then made his way to Vallejo and from thence to Tracy, where he was recognized, arrested and turned over to the police of San Francisco.

Mr. Wheeler Got Rid of His Rheumatism.

"During the winter of 1898 I was so lame in my joints, in fact all over my body, that I could hardly hobble around, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. From the first application I began to get well, and was cured and have worked steadily all the year.—R. Wheeler, Northwood, N. Y. For sale by F. Duhring. *

THE CITY TRUSTEES.

Health Officer to Receive the Munificent Snm of $5 a Month.

The City Trustees met in regular monthly session last Wednesday evening.

A full Board was present as follows: President Duhring, and Trustees Bulotti, Ciucci, Harris and Hotz.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and approved the following bills run the gauntlet of the Auditing Committee and were ordered paid:

David Wolfe, rebate	$ 1 00
Jas. H. Albertson, salary	15 00
W. T. Rutledge, electric light	51 00
Joe B. Small, salary	25 00
Firemen, rebate on Poll and Road Tax	44 00
B. Anselmo, labor	2 00

On motion of Trustee Harris, seconded by Trustee Bulotti, a rebate of $1 00 on license was allowed David Wolfe.

A rebate of $44 was allowed the members of the Sonoma Volunteer Fire Company for Road and Poll taxes.

The following resolutions were introduced by Trustee Hotz and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the County Clerk be requested to appoint Mr. J. H. Albertson a Deputy Clerk for Sonoma precinct for registration purposes only, and that the City Clerk be instructed to communicate this request to the County Clerk.

Resolved, That the Deputy County Clerk for Sonoma precinct be paid ten cents for each name registered by him up to 25, and that he be paid five cents for each name registered in excess of 25, said compensation to cease after March 19th, 1902.

The firemen sent the Board the following invitation to their annual banquet, which was accepted:

To the Hon. Board of Trustees and City Officials: You are cordially invited to attend a banquet at L. Modini's Garibaldi House on the night of February 12th to be given by the firemen.

G. S. HARRIS, Chairman.

The following communication was received from the Plaza Committee of the Woman's Club:

To the Hon. Board of City Trustees—Gentlemen: We, the undersigned Committee on Plaza from the Woman's Club, hereby request your honorable body to have the work usually done on the Plaza done this year as heretofore—that is to say, plowing, pruning, etc. Or, if more agreeable, we will receive the amount of money usually expended by the city for such work and expend it with other funds for improving and caring for the Plaza. We beg your earest attention in the matter. Respectfully submitted.

AMELIA H. BATES.
LULU V. EMPARAN.
AMELIA QUARTAROLI.

The communication was placed on file and will be acted upon at the March meeting.

Clerk Small was instructed to have the assessment blanks for 1902 printed at the INDEX-TRIBUNE office.

Several bills were presented to the Board for services rendered the late Joaquin Hansen, who was run over by a California Northwestern train near here last month and received injuries from which he subsequently died. The claims were laid over until the next meeting.

Mrs. Dorman, Chairman of the Sanitary Committee of the Woman's Club, appeared before the Trustees and addressed them in reference to fixing the salary of the newly-appointed Health Officer, to the end that the sanitary ordinance be enforced.

Mrs. Dorman, having concluded her remarks, on motion of Trustee Harris, which received a second from Trustee Hotz, the Board for once in its life untied the city's purse strings and in the liberality of their souls voted Health Officer Albertson the munificent salary of $5 per month.

Mrs. H. C. Calderwood also appeared before the Board and urged an appropriation to purchase a memorial stone for the Sloat monument which will shortly be erected in Monterey. The Trustees did not take kindly to the proposition on account of the expense, and the matter was laid over indefinitely.

The Board then adjourned.

ARTIFICIAL EYES.

From Pare's Crude Invention to the Modern Work of Art.

The earliest known mention of modern artificial eyes—that is, eyes worn inside the orbit—occurs in an exceedingly rare illustrated work on surgery written by a French surgeon named Ambroise Pare and published in Paris in 1561. Pare invented three artificial eyes. The first was a wonderful contrivance. It consisted of a thin metal spring band which passed half way round the wearer's head, having on one end a small oval plate, which covered the orbit of the eye and the other end pressed against the back of the head. The oval plate was covered with smooth, soft leather, on which an eye was painted. It would, perhaps, be difficult to devise anything more inelegant or uncomfortable.

The second device was a hollow globe of gold, eye shaped and enameled, which was worn inside the socket—the first recorded artificial eye thus worn.

The third contrivance was simply a "shell pattern" eye, exactly similar in shape to those now used, but made of gold and enameled. Except that they were made of gold and enameled, the two latter were practically of the same design as the "globe" and "shell" glass eyes of the present day.

Pare's clumsy, trusslike appliance, and his two gold eyes, which were used only by the wealthy, were succeeded by eyes made of painted porcelain and colored pearl white, which immediately became immensely popular. Next came the invention of glass eyes, which instantly superseded all others and still command the public favor.

Glass eyes, which were invented in 1579, were well known in Shakespeare's time. In "King Lear" (act 4, scene 6), written in 1605 and first published in 1608, Lear, with crushing derision, thus advises the blinded traitor Gloucester, "Get thee glass eyes, and * * * seem to see." As a strict necessity, Gloucester would have required globe pattern eyes.

In Shakespeare's day glass eyes were literally the finest productions of very inferior workmanship, the iris and the pupil being hand painted in the best style of that rough and ready period. However, as Father Time marched along glass eyes progressed and improved in make and finish, especially within the last half century, and now they have reached a high standard of excellence as works of art.—Chambers' Journal.

Bees and Rain.

Generally the bee stays at home when rain is in the air. When the sky is simply dark and cloudy, those busy workers do not leave their dwelling all at once. A few go out first, as though the queen had sent out messengers to study the state of the atmosphere. The greater number remain on observation until the clouds begin to dissipate, and it is only then that the battalions entire rush out in search of their nectar. A bee never goes out in a fog, because it is well aware that dampness and cold are two fearsome, redoubtable enemies. We do not mean, however, that the bee is a meteorologist in the absolute sense of the word. Its cleverness consists in never being taken unawares, for it possesses untiring vigilance. Often one may observe the sudden entrance of bees into the hive when a dense cloud hides the sun and even though the rain is not in evidence. —Los Angeles Times.

Virgil and the "Æneid."

Virgil on his deathbed attempted to destroy his great work, the "Æneid." The "Æneid" was not his favorite poem, although it is the one which constitutes his claim to the remembrance of posterity. He liked the "Georgica" best. It is said that the "Æneid" cost him eleven years of labor, and that he intended to devote three years more to polishing it and bringing it nearer to his ideal of what an epic poem ought to be. Before he could give much time to the latter task, however, he died, and in his last moments he tried to secure the book and destroy it. It was kept out of his reach, though, and subsequently given to the world as it was originally written.

Invention of Poplin.

The original invention of poplin is claimed by Avignon, France, once a papal see, on which account it was called a papaline in compliment to the reigning pope, at which time (the fifteenth century) this rich material was produced to supply the gorgeous ecclesiastical vestments and hangings in use. The industry was introduced into Dublin by French immigrants, refugees at the time of the revocation of the edict of Nantes, who settled in that part of the Irish capital called the Liberties. The La Touche family established the first organized manufactory there, which commenced operations in 1693.

BRILLIANT ORATORS.

They Are at Their Best After the Age of Forty-five.

Among orators there can be no doubt that it is between the ages of forty-five and fifty that their special endowments have secured for them their highest triumphs. Demosthenes, whose ambition was early kindled, did not deliver his greatest speech, "De Corona," which has been described as the most magnificent vindication in the annals of oratory, until he was fifty-two.

Burke, whose training was desultory, astonished the house of commons by his speech on American affairs when he was thirty-six, but only achieved his masterpiece, his impeachment of Warren Hastings—an effort of eloquence unparalleled in its energy and effect, and which must have exhausted his speech centers, for it left him at one point deprived of the power of articulation for a little—when he was in his fifty-eighth year.

Curran, of whom Byron said, "He has spoken more poetry than I have ever written," made his most brilliant speeches in the state trials in which he appeared between his forty-fourth and forty-seventh years, and John Bright, whose fiery declamation on behalf of the Anti-Corn Law league began in his twenty-eighth year, may be said to have exhibited his control over language in its finest perfection in speeches delivered subsequent to his election for Birmingham when he was forty-six.

On this subject Mr. Barnett Smith says: "I have heard all the greatest speeches of the greatest orators of my time—parliamentary, pulpit and platform speakers—Butt, Lowe, Disraeli, Bulwer-Lytton, Derby, Punshon, Gough—and all had their most splendid period from forty-five to fifty-five years of age. In the case of Gladstone some of his greatest orations were delivered when he was between fifty-five and sixty."—London Tit-Bits.

No Use For Art.

The bridge builder with Stonewall Jackson's army was a rare character if the following story be true:

The Union soldiers, retreating from the valley of Virginia, burned a bridge over the Shenandoah.

Jackson, who wanted to pursue, sent for his old bridge builder. "Sir," he said, "you must keep men at work all day and all night and finish that bridge by tomorrow morning. My engineer shall give you a plan."

Old Miles saluted and withdrew.

Early the next morning the general sent for Miles again. "Well, sir," said Jackson, "did the engineer give you the plan for the bridge?" "General," said the old man slowly, "the bridge is done. I don't know whether the picture is or not."—Herald and Presbyter.

An Odd Compliment.

An odd compliment was paid a naval officer who accompanied Sir John Malcolm's mission to Teheran by a Persian trader. The officer was a very poor horseman and, being mounted on a rather spirited Arab, afforded the onlookers a good deal of amusement by his frantic endeavors to keep his seat in the saddle. The trader sought to console him, saying that he had told all his friends "You, like all English, good rider, but this one time they see you, you very drunk." It was, he thought, a serious shortcoming in a white man to be unable to ride, but none whatever to be very drunk in public on a ceremonial occasion.

A Cutting Reply.

One would suppose that consciousness of his own deformity would have made Talleyrand more lenient to the defects of others. That this was not the case is illustrated in his reply to a questioner whose misfortune it was to be cross eyed.

Meeting Talleyrand as the great statesman was leaving a council where there had been much wrangling and confusion, this person called out to him:

"Well, M. de Talleyrand, how are things looking?"

"Like your eyes, sir," was the cutting response.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists sell the 50c. size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N.Y.
The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation.
With Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh and Hay Fever.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:
BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.
Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.
About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.
I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.
I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain
Very truly yours,
